

University of Cincinnati – Policy on Academic Probation

The University of Cincinnati does not have a university-wide policy on academic probation for graduate students. Each program is in charge of enforcing its own probation policy. The following was taken from the graduate student handbook for the Department of History. Other program's handbooks have similar language.

All students must maintain a 3.0 average to remain in good standing. Only students in good standing may serve as graduate assistants and receive University Graduate Scholarships. Standing is assessed at the end of each semester for the purpose of reviewing financial support.

Students must earn at least a B- to receive credit for a course. Students who fail to maintain at least the minimum grade point average are subject to dismissal from the program after two semesters. Students who are dismissed from the program must reapply and gain acceptance before resuming coursework.
